

Views of a Prominent New York Republican.

WASHINGTON, November 18th.—David Clinton Wheeler, of New York, arrived in Washington to-day, and has talked politics to a local reporter. He says he does not know who will succeed Mr. Lapham in the Senate, but adds: Mr. Arthur won't be a candidate for the place. I mean that he won't go before the Legislature and make a fight for the place. You understand me. If it should turn out that they could unite on him, he would accept, I think. When I get a chance to look the matter over, and see who we have in the Legislature, I shall know something definite about it. There are lots of men mentioned who might succeed Mr. Lapham. Hiscock, Cornell and others are spoken of. Conkling is seriously spoken of also. Mr. Wheeler says that he don't know whether there is any chance for Conkling's election, and sagely observes: They accuse Conkling of working against Blaine. I don't know whether he did or not; but of course he will get the credit of it, because his county reversed Garfield's majority. The same thing happened in Niagara county—that's Crowley's home. They accused Crowley of deserting Blaine. Now I know he was one of the most earnest men in the party during the campaign. Still he will be accused. Mr. Wheeler intimates that he is all broken up by the result of the election, and says there were a thousand things which contributed to Blaine's defeat. "You can't say which one in particular did it. Before Blaine came into the State from Ohio he could have carried it by 25,000 majority. As soon as he came into the State he was the victim of all sorts of adverse circumstances. Field was responsible for that dinner, and then—well you know all about Burchard. Sixty thousand—at least 60,000 Republicans voted for Cleveland. If it had not been for the disaffected Irish Blaine's defeat would have been a Waterloo."

FAMOUS SONGS.

Who Their Authors Were, and What They Received for Them.

Foster got $15,000 for writing "Old Folks at Home."

Charles Dibdin netted several weeks' board for writing "Poor Jack," while his publishers made $25,000 out of it.

Robert Treat Payne wrote "Ye Sons of Columbia," early in 1800, under the title of "Adams and Liberty," and was paid $750 for it.

"America" was written by the Rev. Samuel Francis Smith in 1832, and it was first sung in Boston on the Fourth of July in that year.

"Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean," was written by Thomas A. Becket, an English actor, who in 1879 was a teacher of music at Philadelphia.

The tune of "John Brown's Body" is of Methodist camp-meeting origin. It was adapted to its present use by an organist in Harvard Church in 1861.

Crouch, the writer of "Kathleen Mavourneen," received $25 for the production, and afterwards became a beggar tramp, while his publisher could have built a brown stone front out of its sales.

"The Star Spangled Banner," was written by Francis Scott Key while watching the bombardment of Fort Mchenry in 1814. The song was printed in the Baltimore American eight days after the battle under the title of "The Defense of Fort Mchenry."

George P. Morris wrote "Woodman, Spare That Tree," because the purchaser of a friend's estate wanted to cut down a tree which his grandfather had planted. His friend paid the purchaser $10 to spare it. Morris was so touched by the story that he wrote the song.

John Howard Payne's "Home, Sweet Home" was written for an opera. It was first sung in the Covent Garden Theater, at London, and made a big hit. One hundred thousand copies were sold the first year, and by the end of the second its publishers had cleared $10,000 from it.

The author of "Maryland, My Maryland" lives at Washington. He writes gossip letters to the Augusta Chronicle. His name is James R. Randall, and he is a modest-looking, dark-complexioned man of forty. He was very young when he wrote that beautiful poem. His ideas are broader now.

There is a house in Berlin—Weberstrasse No. 18—which harbors no less than 130 families, numbering in all 1,025 souls.

Fifty-two skeletons of Lapps, found some time ago in Russia Lapland, have been sold to museums in Europe at $30 a piece.

There is a movement on foot in England, participated in principally by the scientists, looking to the abolition of private lunatic asylums.

In the years 1880-91 there were 16 homicides in London, 146 in Paris, 18 in Berlin, and 23 in Vienna. In Rome they were "too numerous to mention."

In Germany a man dare not cut down the trees on his own land without the consent of the proper authorities, so zealous is the government in preserving the forests.

The rough and uncut diamonds exported from the Division of Kimberley, in South Africa, during August last weighed 187,806 29-32 carats; the declared value was £235,912.

The quarantine in Italy has already resulted in a loss to Italy of over five million dollars; and the effect of the scare in Spain being almost as pernicious, the regulations have been relaxed.

THE LATEST DANCES.

Steps That Will be Fashionable the Coming Winter.

The Milwaukee Globe says: "While society in all its varied phases takes deep interest in the amusement that dot each Winter season with bright spots, and nights to be remembered, few people pay attention to anything more than the personal enjoyment of these pleasures. In the way of dancing parties, their styles, changes, and especially new figures, everybody is interested. Ask the ordinary society man where the change in the dances originate, and he answers vaguely, 'Paris.' To find the degree of truth in this reply the head of a favorite dancing academy in this city was interviewed last evening; seated in her cozy parlor, the lady answered the question quite fully.

"You should know that in New York there are held the monthly meetings of professors of dancing. The head of this society is a member of similar societies in Paris and elsewhere. New dances or changes in the figures or steps that are introduced elsewhere are reported to this meeting and a practical illustration of the step or figure is given, the professors standing in line and learning it. If it is considered a desirable acquisition or worthy of living it is at once sent to all other members of the association. Thus, with the better class of dancing schools, a new step comes out simultaneously in all the cities. There is much of advantage in this, as formerly, and to some extent now, INNOVATIONS ARE INTRODUCED By comparatively unknown people. These are taught to a sufficient number to considerably 'mix' a mixed assembly of dancers. When the membership of the New York Assembly becomes general these troubles will cease, as the originator of a new step will then submit it and it will not be taught unless generally accepted.

"The changes for the coming Winter are not all arranged yet, but a general survey of the field may be given. The waltz quadrille and lawn tennis quadrille will be the square dances of the Winter, without doubt. The plain quadrille will be danced more like the Saratoga quadrille. That is, the first four will dance with the side couples instead of remaining quiet. In the round dances the waltz will, as usual, be the dance. I think it safe to say the waltz will never be superseded. The other round dances will go as usual. None of them have been dropped."

"To a lady, especially, a dance without a programme is an affair tame, spiritless, and altogether unprofitable. Without these little card-boards she can't give more than ten waltzes to her favorite partner, and prove it. She naturally gets mixed on her engagements. Her mind should be given to the pleasure of the evening and not to its detail.

The stocks of programmes prepared for the Winter season are the neatest and most artistic that have appeared for years. The prevailing color of the paper is white, as in note paper fancies. The way-up, elegant square, heavy card with crimped, beveled edge. The edge is either plain or gilt, according to the taste of the purchaser. This card, printed with copper-plate and surmounted with a monogram, is certainly a lovely affair, acceptable to the most refined taste.

THE NEXT PROGRAMME In favor is a folded one with two broad hammered silver bands on white ground. The design is striking and taking, while its companion, with bands of hammered brass, is not nearly so popular. Thus runs the taste of the public.

For swell secret society balls, the paper-makers have done the proper thing. The programmes are generally plain white cards of heavy paper, with rounded or square corners. The beveled edge in these may be plain or gilt. In the center of the outside the embossed figure of prominent emblems of the society are placed in silver, gold

The firemen will have a wide range of artistic programmes to choose from. On this with horses on the run, is embossed in gold or elegantly executed, is that of a burning interior seen through the charred edges of a picture. The figures are a fireman who has dropped his hose to grasp the child a woman lifting to him. The curling smoke shadows the scene. This is lithographed in beautiful tints. Three other designs with this one complete the set.

For masquerades the designs are as plentiful as the stars, and each one is prettier than the last. The leader is the usual white card with a lithographed figure of a page, gentleman in the costume of '76, flower girl, etc.

In the way of programmes for fancy dress parties, the designer has racked his brains to some effect. A pretty conceit is a folded glove in all the fashionable shades. Another new one is a satin sachet, hand-painted on a heavy cream, beveled card-board. Another sachet covers the whole card nearly. The satin is of a plain bright color, and is the background for the embossed figures of a flower girl and her attendant. A card with a half etched figure of a girl holding a small folded card bearing on its outside the legend, "Ordes of the dance," is among the neat and less expensive cards.

Unless the party is to be recherche in the extreme one can hardly choose amies among the legion of lovely programmes shown. The figures of the price follow the fashionableness of the design upward, and the country school house dance may be as appropriately served with programmes as the swell charity ball."

An Anticipated Exodus.

NEW YORK, November 18.—The Commercial's Washington special says: There is every indication of another exodus of the colored people of the South. They are much concerned for their own future because of the Democratic victory. In anticipation of a stampede a meeting of influential colored men will be held here in a day or two to see what can be done to encourage the movement.

NEW YORK, November 18th.—The Tribune, in a leader, advises the Republican Senate to make use of all its opportunities to prevent the next Administration from violating the principles of civil service reform. It says: "If a Democratic President sends in appointments contrary to the intent and spirit of reform, it is the duty of the Senate to reject them. If appointments are made for the purpose of buying up influence or to reward political treachery, a Republican Senate will consider whether such prostitution of the appointing power is in the line of civil service reform. Moreover, it will become the immediate duty of the Senate to inquire, on behalf of the Republicans of the nation, whether true self-government exists in certain Southern States and what remedy is needed or possible; whether 153 votes of the solid South, fraudulently obtained, shall hereafter govern the country, regardless of the views of the people, whenever they may be able to capture a small fragment of the votes of the North."

The next State Senate will be composed of 14 Republicans, 5 Democrats and one Independent. Dangberg, of Douglas county, is the Independent. He was elected mainly by Democratic votes, and two years ago participated in the Democratic caucus in the nomination of officers. During the session, however, on political issues, he voted as often with the Republicans as with the Democrats.—Tuscarora Times-Review.

MIDDLE-AGED MEN.
There are many at the age of thirty to sixty who are troubled with too frequent evacuations of the bladder, often accompanied by a slight smarting or burning sensation, and a weakening of the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. On examining the urinary deposits aropy sediment will often be found, and sometimes small particles of albumen will appear, the color will be a thin milky blue, again changing to a dark and torpid appearance. There are many men who die of this dilatation, ignorant of the cause, which is the second stage of seminal weakness. Dr. S. will guarantee a perfect cure in all such cases, and a healthy restoration to the genito-urinary organs.
